The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Kealey (6,599,553).

The applied reference has a common inventor with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art only under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) might be overcome by: (1) a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not an invention "by another"; (2) a showing of a date of invention for the claimed subject matter of the application which corresponds to subject matter disclosed but not claimed in the reference, prior to the effective U.S. filing date of the reference under 37 CFR 1.131; or (3) an oath or declaration under 37 CFR 1.130 stating that the application and reference are currently owned by the same party and that the inventor named in the application is the prior inventor under 35 U.S.C. 104, together with a terminal disclaimer in accordance with 37 CFR 1.321(c). This rejection might also be overcome by showing that the reference is disqualified under 35 U.S.C. 103(c) as prior art in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a). See MPEP § 706.02(I)(1) and § 706.02(I)(2).

Kealey discloses a dry drink mix of chocolate containing emulsifier, and cocoa procyanidin (claim 1). The procyanidin content of a variety of cocoa products is shown in Table 4 and appears to fall within the range of the claims. The cocoa polyphenols were added to a variety of foods as shown in Table 1A. The lecithin content of the drink is shown at the top of column 52 and appears to be within the range of the claims. Although the drink mix is not described as a food additive or food supplement, it would have been obvious at the time of applicants' invention to utilize the cocoa of Kealey in a chocolate or cookie formulation.

Applicant argues that Kealey does not show cocoa ingredients that include cocoa solids pretreated with lecithin. This has been considered but is not persuasive. Example 11 shows these features. It is appreciated that the example does not mention a pretreatment step but the claims are directed to a product and not to a process. The cocoa solids are the solid components of the cocoa powder used in example 11. Cocoa powder is generally known in the art to be the result of the partial removal of cocoa fat for chocolate liquor.

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Myers (6,194,020) or (6,399,139).

Myers discloses cocoa polyphenols for use in confectioneries. At column 7, lines 46-50 of '020 and column 7, lines 44-48 of the '139, chocolate liquor is described as having the cocoa procyanidins of the claims. At column 25 of '020 and example 8 of '139 a chocolate formulation including lecithin is shown. The claims appear to differ from Myers in the recitation of the use of chocolate as an additive. Chocolate is a well-known ingredient in cake and cookie recipes. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the chocolate of Myers as an additive in a cake formulation.

Applicant argues that Myers does not show cocoa ingredients that include cocoa solids pretreated with lecithin. This has been considered but is not persuasive. Example 8 in both patents shows these features. It is appreciated that the example does not mention a pretreatment step but the claims are directed to a product and not to a process. The cocoa solids are the solid components of the cocoa powder used in example 8. Cocoa powder is generally known in the art to be the result of the partial removal of cocoa fat for chocolate liquor.

Applicants' response to the 112 rejection of claim 10 is sufficient to overcome the rejection.

Claim 6, 8, 9, 10, 27, 45-61 are allowed.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

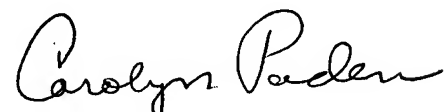

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
